CONTENTS.

	Page
The Birth of Sensibility	1
Wolkmar and his Dog	3
Good Effects of Bad Novels	6
Manners of the Parisian Ladies	11
The Introduction	12
Equivocal Epistle	15
On the Duties which we owe to Society	16
Singular Invitation	18
Dramatic Anecdote from Kotzebue	19
Account of Mad. Helvetius	23
Adeline St. Clair	25
Resignation	28
Henrietta St. Leger	31
An Affecting Story	36
Remarkable Escape	39
Song, The Men are Rovers	40
On Music	65
O Vanity	67
Maid of St. Marino	69
Sham Ghost	79
Marquis D'Embleville	84
Anecdotes,	89
History, a proper object of Female Pursuit	91
On a taste for Real Pleasures.	95
On Characters	97
Bromley Melmot	99
Song, Crazy Jane	106
Maid of St. Marino, concluded	109
Bromley Melmot continued	140
Petition of Time	158
Interesting Anecdote	155
The Generous Sultana	156
The two Bees	157
Epitaph on a Bird	158
Thoughts on the pleasures of Domestic Life	159
The Lover's Heart	160
The Female Sex described by St. Pierre	162
Method of Reading for female Improvement	162
Health an Allegory	165
Song, She lives in the valley below	168
Bromley Melmot continued,	193
On Gentleness	211
On the Treatment of the Fair Sex	214
The African, a sketch	217
Meditations on Spring	218
Admonitions of a Father to his Daughter	223
Filial Cruelty	230
Song, a Smile and a Tear	232
Bromley Melmot continued	257
Grammatical Epistle	277
On Laughing	278
Thoughts on human Happiness	279
The Temple of Sensibility	281
The Man of Forty-thousand Francs	287
On the Condition of Women	288
Universal Warfare	288
On the Power of Habit, and the Force of Affection	289
Sketch of Lavater	290
New Trait in the Female Character	292
Abelard and Eloisa	294
Song, Sweetly in Life's Jocund morning	296
Bromley Melmot concluded	321
Placentia	344
Temple of Sensibility concluded	346
On Music, Poetry, and Dancing	351
The Wooden Leg	353
Lee in Bedlam	356
Description	357
Curious administration of Justice	359
Song, Snatch Fleeting Pleasures	360
Song, Never doubt that I love	360